

Great Internships-Onward Cleveland

1. Sarah Jaffe- Latet: Latet is a non-profit organization that works with many sectors in Israel to help reduce poverty and hunger. Sarah interned in their Marketing department, where she did mostly resource development, grant writing and a variety of marketing tasks. After only a couple weeks she really got involved in all aspects of the organization and their different projects. They sent her to a couple events around the country as a Latet representative as well. She really enjoyed her internship and she did a really great job- Latet loved her and all the work she did for them!

2. Jamie Solomon-Gan Bein Cramim Vesadot (Association for Children at Risk): Gan Bein Cramim Vesadot is a special education Kindergarten run by an umbrella organization called Association for Children at Risk. Jamie worked with a group of 4-5 year old boys with Autism, as a staff member helping out with all aspects of taking care of the children. She also shadowed a speech therapist and sat in on private sessions once a day, and after the sessions the speech therapist translated (since the sessions were in Hebrew) and explained different aspects of the therapy. This was very beneficial for Jamie, as she would like to go in to the Speech Therapy field. She had a great and meaningful experience and contributed so much to the Gan!

3. Elliott Small-Futoreal Investment Firm: Futoreal Investment Firm is a real-estate development and investment company that works with cities, tenants and investors. While Elliott was exposed to many aspects of the company, his main role was finance and accounting related work. He learned a lot about the real-estate investment world and developed many finance related skills- all from a beautiful Herzliya office with an amazing view. He was a major asset to the company and he loved his internship.

4. Sara Spain-Insights: Insights is a consulting company that created a digital consulting platform to assist leaders and governments in making smarter decisions. Sara interned as a consulting agent, and provided consulting for many of the company's costumers from the U.S. She was also involved with writing for their international crowd, as well as assisting the company with a number of projects related to their analysis technology. Sara loved her experience at Insights- she gained many skills and learned a lot about different government bodies across the world. The company was very pleased with Sara and with the work she did for them.

5. Blake Federmen-Natie: Natie is a boutique creative Branding Agency that works with small private companies across the world, as well as many big name companies, such as Google, Target, AT&T and Gmail. Blake joined their small but active team and was involved with digital advertisement and branding. He helped them out with many of their big projects, doing online formatting and designing, as well as creating presentations for them to present to their customers. Blake loved every minute of his internship from their cool office in the WeWork building in Tel Aviv and Natie loved having Blake on their team- he contributed a ton to their company!

6. Benjamin Poreh and Ezekiel Badowski-Neomatix: Neomatix is a software startup, developing electro-optic tire monitoring solutions for drivers and vehicle fleets. Ben interned with their Software Development department, doing a variety of tasks such as analyzing data for their technology and working on improving the company's new software. Zeke was involved part-time with the company's Marketing department, working on digital marketing for their website, as well as graphic design and helping create their new brochure. The rest of the time he was involved with the software and learning system for their technology. The company absolutely loved both Ben and Zeke! Both interns really enjoyed their internships and gained very valuable experience in their respective fields.

7. Jessica Angel-Value Your Startup: Value Your Startup is a financial consulting firm that provides consulting services to the startup ecosystem- both founders and investors. Jess was involved in both Marketing and Finance related work for the company, and they assigned her a project that she worked on independently (under the supervision of one of their partners), with an accelerator company for Deutsch Telekom, doing market research and analyses of the market in Israel. Jess gained a lot of valuable experience and learned a lot about the startup ecosystem in Israel and abroad. The company was very happy with her and she contributed a lot to the startup.

8. Matthew Turell-MOBY (Bat-Yam Museum of Modern Art): MOBY is a unique small art museum with a dynamic display of culture and history themed art exhibitions, as well as ongoing educational group programming. Matt's internship role was very dynamic and he was involved with all aspects of the museum. Some examples of tasks he had are developing and updating their website, researching relevant topics for their new exhibition, marketing and social media management and assisting in setting up the museum's exhibitions. The museum staff loved Matt and his work was very meaningful for the museum's development. Matt enjoyed his internship very much and learned a lot about the arts management world.

9. Julian Ayzman-Research at The Felsenstein Medical Research Center in Schneider Hospital: The Felsenstein Research Center is located in Schneider Hospital and is one of Israel's most advanced institutions in Medical Research among a variety of fields. Julian interned in a lab with a team of professors and doctors performing Glaucoma research. In their project they used mice for experiments to analyze possible changes to the retina layer within the eye. Julian was involved with all stages of the research project, starting from collecting the material from mice, sorting the results and then analyzing the patterns and changes in the eye with the lab's advanced technology. As a pre-med university student, Julian gained a lot of experience and learned a ton about medical research through this internship. The lab team was very happy with him and impressed with the proficiency of the work he did for them!

10. Austin Oberfeld-Jaffa Institute: Jaffa Institute is a non-profit organization that assists impoverished youth in improving all aspects of their life, through educational enrichment programs and support of the physical and emotional welfare of the children. Austin got to experience both the "behind the scenes" work for the organization as well as working directly with the children. Two days a week he interned in the office, doing marketing work, grant writing and social media management and for the other two days he worked with the children in one of their youth centers in Jaffa. Austin absolutely loved his experience- especially the fact that he got to experience all aspects of the organization. The staff was very impressed with him both on a professional and personal level and he built some special connections with the children he worked with.
